REBELS RENEW SEA ATTACK

BEHIND THE SCENES IN WASHINGTON

By Rodney Dutcher

WASHINGTON—Few politicians have any more doubt as to where the bulk of the labor vote is going. The question most at issue is whether, when organized labor aligns itself rather solidly behind one presidential candidate, there won't be sufficient adverse reaction from farmers and other middle-class voters to offset the effect.

Threat of War in Europe Frightens People of France

Situation "Blackest in Months" Opinion of Diplomats in Paris

ISSUE OVER SPAIN

European Powers Striving for Agreement on Munitions Policy

COPYRIGHT ASSOCIATED PRESS.
PARIS—War clouds over Europe were the "blackest in months," French diplomats said Friday night, although they were encouraged by the action of Italy which accepted the proposed neutrality pact with reservations.

Mussolini said he would place an embargo on arms shipments to Spain if the other powers would promise to do the same.

French advocates of the pact Friday night turned to the nations from which Mussolini had demanded non-interference assurances. These Italy listed as France, England, Germany and Russia.

Foreign diplomats at Madrid and Hendaye failed in their efforts to arrange peace talks between the Spanish Socialist government and the Fascist rebels seeking to capture Madrid and establish a dictatorship.

Reports of an uprising in Portugal appeared untrue but its possibility alarmed statesmen who feared the spread of the Fascist-Socialist war might start a European conflagration.

Many Elements of Danger
It was reported that the German ambassador to Moscow had delivered a "threatening protest" to Russia's foreign commissar, Maxim Litvinoff against Soviet interference in the Spanish civil war.

From Berlin, it was announced that unfair radio broadcasts by Russia had caused a protest, and that a second warning against interfering with German shipping had been sent to Madrid.

Chancellor Hitler was reported in consultation with Admiral Erich Raeder, German chief of the Admiralty, over the Spanish situation.

It was reported that the French government has pressed the Madrid Loyalist government to make speedy amends to Germany for the search of the German steamer Kamerun by Loyalist naval forces.

It was this "incident" that caused Hitler to send seven warships to Spanish waters to reinforce the nine Nazi warships there or near there.

France looked hopefully to London for support in forcing an apology for the Kamerun incident to Germany by the Loyalist Madrid regime, with which France sympathizes because of similar political complexes of the government of the two nations.

Tries to Avert Outbreak
French government leaders still were making frantic efforts to keep alive the French neutrality proposals.

The Foreign Office insisted its neutrality plan was "far from dead," as it watched for news from the Spanish coast where Germany and England have threatened to use force should Spanish belligerents interfere with vessels of either nation.

It was agreed that France and Great Britain will not be able to keep their

"Pig-in-a-Poke" Policies of F. D. Rapped by Landon

Republican Nominer Opens His Speaking Tour at West Middlesex, Pa.

REPUBLICAN MOVE

Party Propagandists to Furnish Butchers With "Price Billboards"

WEST MIDDLESEX, Pa.—(AP)—Governor Alf Landon Saturday asserted that the presidential campaign presented "a choice between the pig-in-a-poke policies" of the New Deal and American "freedom of enterprise."

In his first major Eastern address the Republican nominee pledged himself "as far as it lies within my power to protect for America our heritage of freedom and opportunity."

A Republican Move
WASHINGTON—(AP)—From Chicago comes a story that Republican headquarters is preparing to offer butcher shop owners and ultimately other food dealers a blackboard chart upon which will be estimated (by Republican experts) how much of the price of meat and other products represents taxes.

The plan is to convince the housewife she actually is paying the taxes that otherwise might seem rather remote to her. As an example, the Republican national committee set out to show that the price of a steak really was 30 cents a pound, but that taxes pushed the cost to 45 cents.

Idea Good, But—
The idea was to hang these charts in butcher shops where all purchasers could see them to rouse their ire against governmental spending and accompanying taxes. Not knowing how many butchers would agree to such a plan, this writer called on a few here.

Without exception they had not heard of the idea; thought it would be a convincing way of telling the people what the cost of government means in taxes; said they certainly would not use the signs.

For this last they gave various versions of the same reason: That regardless of the fact it was the Republican plan to avoid indicating on the tax chart just who was sponsoring it, nevertheless it would "get around" that it was Republican campaign material. Some of their Democratic patrons, they thought, might object and start buying at other stores, which did not display the chart.

The manager of one chain store said his company several weeks ago instructed all employees not to talk politics with their customers. He suspected many chain store executives might be against the New Deal because of the Robinson-Patman chain store bill.

Men of Tomorrow

The Story of The Star's Carrier Boys—This One Is Thomas Jobe, of Hope

My name is Thomas Jobe. I am the only son of Mrs. Sara Jobe of 1102 East Third street.

I am 15 years old. I have been carrying newspapers for The Star since October 14 of last year.

I serve East Second street, Foster Avenue, East Division and the side streets leading from Second to Third street. After leaving the home of W. K. Lantry I go to East Third.

From the end of East Third I get on Highway 67 and deliver papers to Tol-E-Tex service station and on out the road as far as the home of S. L. Murphy. It's quite a long route, as you can see.

I like my route fine. My earnings average from $2 to $2.25 each week.

My only misfortune as a carrier boy occurred not long ago when somebody stole my new bicycle that I was trying to pay for out of my weekly earnings.

The bicycle cost me $25.25. I had only made two payments on it, and then it disappeared and I haven't seen it since.

Camp Meet Time Stirrs Throngs to Old Time Religion

100 Degrees Under the Roof, But Congregation Doesn't Mind

ANCIENT PRACTICE

One of Largest Camp Grounds in America Is Near Jackson, Ga.

By WILLIAM BORING
Associated Press Correspondent
JACKSON, Ga.—(AP)—From the shingle-roofed tabernacle into the surrounding woods rolls the chorus from the lips of 1,000.

"It's the old-time religion. . . . It's three in the afternoon, 90 in the shade and 100 under the 'big roof.' But the congregation doesn't seem to mind."

It's good enough for me. . . . A trumpeter tries vainly to carry his notes above the vocal chorus. The song leader sheds his coat. His perspiration-soaked shirt sags. The pianist deviates from the written score. It sounds good.

Little Changed By Years
A few more hymns. "Rock of Ages." "There's Power in the Broom." . . . the passing of the collection plates. . . . then the sermon. It's campmeeting time in the Old South.

Born long before the War Between the States, the religious camp is one of the nation's few institutions little changed since then.

Some campgrounds have running water and electric facilities nowadays. But the program follows the same order as 75 and 100 years ago, and the rows of wooden "benches" facing a wooden tabernacle are the same.

Moderns find "tenting on the old campground" the same round of chicken dinners, family reunions, renewal of old acquaintanceships, sleeping on straw beds and after-meeting campfire gatherings.

Near Jackson is one of the largest camps in the United States, the Indian Springs interdenominational. It was organized in 1839.

Thousands Attend
A city within itself, Indian Springs includes 27 association-owned and 63 privately-owned camp houses (some of two stories), a book store, postoffice, hotel, reading rooms, lodge houses and a tabernacle with a seating capacity of more than 1,000.

Two thousand persons tent on the grounds, and the meeting is attended by from 50,000 to 100,000 persons, according to trustees.

Dr. H. C. Morrison, silver-haired president of Asbury college, Wilmore, Ky., and editor of the Pentecostal Herald, has preached annually at Indian Springs for the last 40 years.

Gov. Olson Shows Chance for Life

Mayo Clinic Reports Minnesota as Apparently Rallying Steadily

Alton CCC Wins Religious Honors

Awarded State Banner for Best Attendance at Religious Services

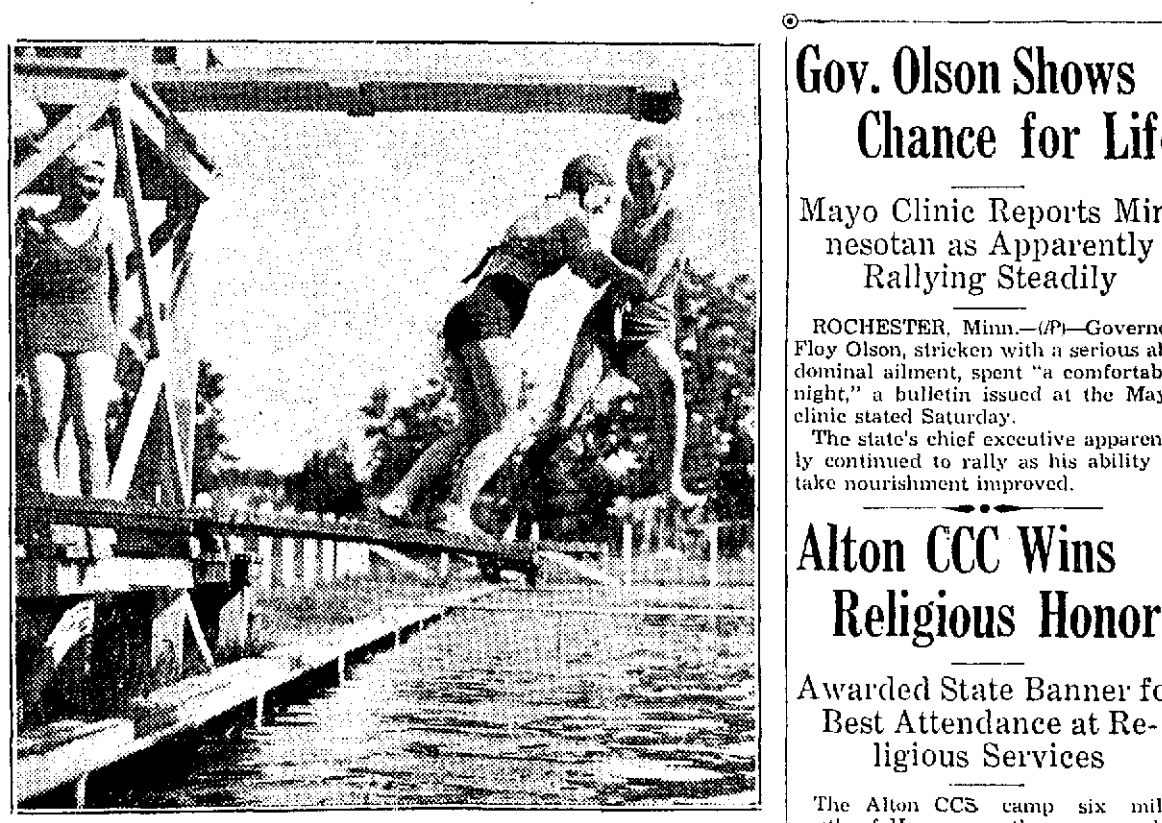

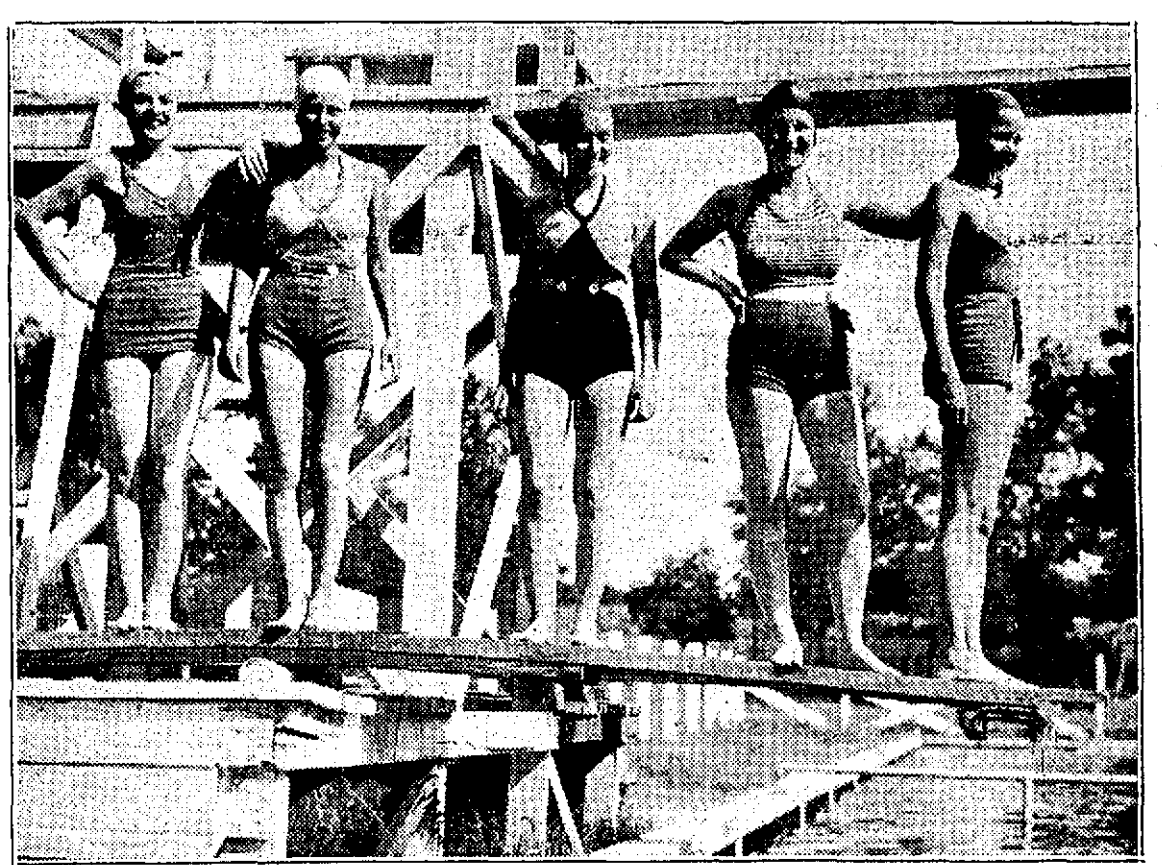

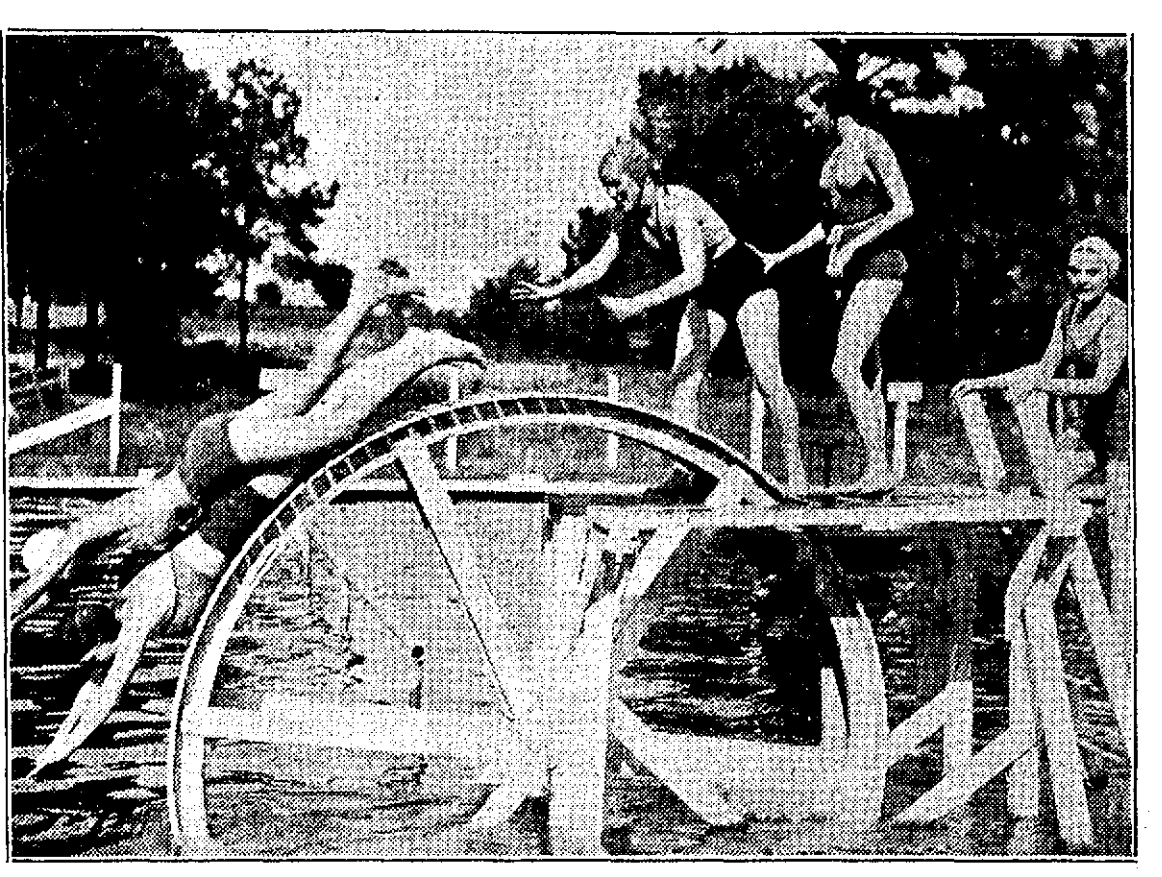

The Alton CCC camp six miles south of Hope, recently was awarded the state banner for best attendance at religious services, competing with all the other camps, according to the Rev. Bert Webb who has had charge of these services the last few weeks.

There is an intense interest among the boys and official personnel of the camp. Chaplain Abbott recently visited the Camp and was very pleased with conditions, the Rev. Mr. Webb said.

Different ministers of the several churches in Hope go out for a service each week at the camp and each reports a high percentage attendance at these meetings.

12-Inch Naval Guns Sweep Fortresses at San Sebastian

Fascist Rebels Make Powerful New Attack on Bay of Biscay

GERMANY PACIFIED

Spain's Government Will Settle Steamer Incident Immediately

HENDAYE, France.—(AP)—The Fascist rebels blasted against the San Sebastian-Irun sector on the Bay of Biscay Saturday in a new naval bombardment.

The huge 12-inch guns of the battleship Espana sent shells screaming over the forts of Igueldo and San Marcos, which defended San Sebastian, and at Fort Guadalupe, overlooking both towns.

Observers said the rebels had difficulty in spotting their objectives, but the bombardment continued unabated.

By the Associated Press
The way for Germany's entrance into a general European neutrality agreement in the Spanish civil war was opened Saturday by the Madrid government's willingness to settle immediately the Kamerun incident.

Augusto Barcia, Spanish Minister of State, declared that Nazi protests of the reported Spanish search of the German steamer Kamerun would be settled quickly to the satisfaction of both governments.

Drive Against Madrid
PAMPLONA, Spain (By Courier to French Frontier).—(AP)—The "big push" on Madrid was launched by the rebel Northern army at dawn Friday.

Military headquarters at Pamplona said that three rebel columns atop the Guadarrama mountains northwest of the loyalist capital had opened their long-awaited drive. Rebel forces included Moorish troops brought from the southern armies of Gen. Francisco Franco, regulars, Fascists and Carlists.

A terrific artillery barrage by land batteries and airplanes began the advance.

Rebel officers said the push would be halted after several miles to consolidate positions, and then would be resumed in a fierce attempt "to take the capital within a short time."

Simultaneously, rebel forces on the San Sebastian front launched a heavy drive at Hernani and Lasarte, a short distance from the besieged and battered city.

2 of Buried Men Are Rescued Alive

But Other 2 Missourians Are Found Dead in White-Damp Gas

MOBERLY, Mo.—(AP)—Two coal miners were rescued alive late Friday from a gas-filled tunnel in which four others were imprisoned by a mine collapse Tuesday afternoon, but death had taken their companions.

"Here I am, boys, I can take it," cried 50-year-old A. W. McCann, oldest of the entombed miners, as weary rescue workers wormed their way through a debris-packed mine shaft into the tunnel prison.

His living companion, Demmer Sexton, co-owner of the mine, was sprawled unconscious at his feet.

Edward Stoner Jr., 26, and George T. Dameron, 27, negro, were dead at the rear of the 280-foot tunnel—victims of deadly white damp.

Relays of rescue crews had torn at the mine shaft since Tuesday when fire swept the mine superstructure, collapsed the shaft and trapped the four.

A crowd of 4,000 spectators sent up a shout when Coroner Jesse Maddox appeared at the mouth of the shaft with his terse statement: "Two of the men are alive."

Turned Brown By Brown Turner

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—(Special).—From the claims and counter claims made by opposing leaders in that Spanish war you'd think they were running for some sort of office and spending about three times more than the job would pay them if they got it.

Mountaineer told me this morning he wasn't going to raise enough hay for his family to develop hay fever, and that the sun had seared his corn so badly it wouldn't make good fodder, much less a gallon or so to the acre. Anyway he said, "The New Deal had ruined him when it turned over the distilling business to city slickers. Grace Moore's back home."

YOUR HEALTH

By Dr. Morris Fishbein

More and more we read in newspapers of the deaths of famous men, leaders in industry and others, from coronary thrombosis. This means that one of the small blood vessels which supplied the heart with blood suddenly became blocked, due to a clot of blood which formed within the vessel.

Little was heard of this condition until just before the World War. Since 1917, however, much has been written about it. It occurs most commonly in people between 50 and 70 years of age. Cases have been reported very rarely in persons under 20 years of age.

First signs of this condition usually is a severe pain in the heart, or just over the heart, which occasionally radiates through to the back or downward to the abdomen. In the worst cases this pain may be so agonizing that the afflicted person becomes gray with apprehension and has an attack of cold sweat.

Sometimes the pain is so severe that the person attacked is unable to remain quiet. In such cases large doses of morphine usually are injected.

A doctor should be called immediately upon occurrence of such symptoms because of their importance as a warning signal of danger to life itself.

Sometimes, in association with an attack of this sort, the patient becomes severely sick and vomits. He may be short of breath, his pulse will slow down, and his blood pressure will fall.

This type of heart attack must be distinguished from the usual attack of angina pectoris. In coronary thrombosis the pain will persist even when the person is put at rest, and it is not usually associated with any sudden previous exertion.

The pain of an attack of angina pectoris usually appears after some exertion, or something that throws extra strain on the heart.

If the person with coronary thrombosis is put to bed immediately and is given proper care, he frequently survives the attack and may even recover completely.

Cases are known in which the damage to the heart tissue is gradually overcome by the processes of repair which take place in living tissue. After a suitable scar has formed, the patient is able to get up and go back to work.

After a few days in bed, the pain will become less intense, the blood pressure will begin to rise again, the shortness of breath will be relieved. Then, after a month or two in bed, depending on severity of the attack, the patient is considered recovered.

There are instances, however, in which the symptoms persist and in which severe pain comes on with any effort. There remains also the possibility of another attack at some later date, although large numbers of patients recover and have no other return of this condition.

Your Children

By Olive Roberts Barton

"I'm so tired of trying to make Jimmy be decent and kind and polite," said a mother in a letter. "The other children around here are terrible. They take advantage of him, and he comes to me now wanting to know why I make him be good when no one else is. He's marked here as a good-goody, and it is making him cross and disobedient. What can I possibly do but let him get bad like the rest?"

This is the problem every parent has on hand today. It confronts the mother of the kindergarten and that of the adolescent alike. Home training versus social influence. It is the battle of the ages. And this age in particular.

There isn't anything to be done, that's the sad part of it. Nothing I know of anyway. There she is, the mother with her home all set in the community, and there are the neighbors. Even if the neighbors are nice, and their children nice, there exist still the differences in ages, in temperaments and interests. Some are allowed to breathe, some that. Orders in one family are disregarded in others. The permissions are different and the standards by which they are judged.

However, when it comes to downright impossible surroundings, then the only thing to be done is to plan moving away. When a situation is serious, only radical measures will help.

One cannot make over a whole community, and neither can one always be fussing with other parents about what their children have done. This isn't good for the child anyway, always to be having his battle fought for him. Indeed, the fewer outside champions he has the better. He should learn to fight his own fights and to bear with trouble. However, we are talking now about the influence on general character, politeness, kindness and the virtues.

It works out about the same. Jimmy's training and his character are as important, or more so, than his immediate happiness. So, if it is right to change residence for one thing, it is equally right to consider the other. Sometimes it is possible to take the child off for part of each day to other scenes, his present group. When school begins there is a better chance of doing so, because he may find congenial souls in his room, which will facilitate new friendships.

But by-and-large, the community and its problems are still there. And as it happens, sometimes it is the community itself that suffers if an incorrigible moves in. One bad boy can spoil an erstwhile peaceful and happy street. It works both ways.

In looking for a house, it pays to take thorough stock of the close-by inhabitants before deciding. Ask yourself, "Will the children around here be clean and well-behaved? Are there boys and girls about the right age to play with?" And so on. It will save time and trouble later. But if you own your property, that is another story. In this case there is nothing left but to try and get playmates from afar who are like your own children in kind and breeding.

pay a big price for being motion picture personalities."

Joan Bennett is involved in a court quarrel with her former husband, John Fox, over her request to change the name of their daughter from Fox to Markey. Miss Bennett has custody of her child, but she had nothing to say about the battle of Miss Astor and Dr. Thorpe for custody of 4-year-old Marilyn Thorpe.

Ruth Chatterton has been photographed in court with Miss Astor, and has been identified as her best friend in some accounts. Fact is that they merely had met five years ago—both recently began working in the Samuel Goldwyn production of "Dodsworth."

Miss Astor invited several members of the cast to accompany her to court. Miss Chatterton accepted and has attended several sessions.

She said: "I admire Miss Astor very much for her courage. I am for her all the way."

Wiseman's Trial Is Put Off Week

Revenue Commissioner Appears to Ascertain Campaign Charges

OZARK, Ark.—Several hundred Franklin county citizens who crowded into the circuit court room here Friday to hear six state officials and employees tried on charges of intimidating a voter, turned reluctantly to a medicine show on the courthouse lawn for entertainment, when the trials were postponed a week, after a three-minute court session.

The courtroom was crowded long before the hour set for appearance of State Revenue Commissioner Earl R. Wiseman and five others employed by the state. The spectators, composed mostly of farmers who have seen their crops wither away under the scorching sun and searing winds of the past few weeks, discussed the drought, old age pensions, WPA drouth relief and other subjects while waiting.

A hush fell over the courtroom as Mr. Wiseman and the other state employees, accompanied by a stenographer from the Revenue Department and by Dave Partain, Van Buren lawyer, entered.

Justice of the Peace C. G. Harman, who had issued warrants for the six men on information filed by J. D. Benson, deputy prosecuting attorney, called for order and said: "Let's see about these cases."

Mr. Partain, one of the five candidates for governor in recent campaign who withdrew before the primary, requested a postponement for a few days, saying that Mr. Wiseman and the others merely had come to Ozark to see what the charges were about and to arrange for trial or disposition of the cases.

Mystery Package Sealed Until 1961

It Is Left to Illinois Comity by a Deceased Historian

WATSEKA, Ill.—(P)—No living person knows the contents of a small box, wrapped like a Christmas package, in the historical room of the Iroquois county courthouse.

Six by eight inches in size and wrapped with heavy brown paper held tight by many windings of twine, the package was left to the county by the late Major Matthew H. Peters, writer, lecturer, collector and Union soldier in the Civil War.

On it is this inscription, written with ink in longhand.

"Do not tear off this wrapper until April 18, 1961, the 100th anniversary of the Civil War."

Honey Despite Drouth

voice a thought for fear of becoming tainted.

Not even the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors ("the Hay Office") has taken any cognizance of the Astor-Thorpe child. A handy reason is that Samuel Goldwyn, for whom Miss Astor has been working, is not a member of the association.

But she is under contract to Columbia Pictures, Harry Cohn, president of that studio, declined to guess whether her career would be affected by the disclosures being made in court.

It has been announced that the hearings will present her appearance in a Columbia picture to which she was assigned. But it also is understood in gossip circles that another story is being sought for her.

Silence on Other Side
No intimates of Dr. Thorpe, who had a wide acquaintance and practice in Hollywood and Beverly Hills, has volunteered a word in his favor. One of his close friends is Clark Gable. They have gone on several hunting trips together.

Gable now is taking a holiday at one of the beach resorts near Santa Barbara; his studio says it doesn't know just which one.

Playwright George S. Kaufman, named as a close friend of Miss Astor, was subpoenaed as he stepped ashore from a yacht trip with Irving Thalberg and Norma Shearer. Fourteen Shearer named only one person in her months ago, in a questionnaire, Miss category of "closest friends." It was Mary Astor.

Sub Rosa Opinion
Actually, of course, Hollywood has some very definite opinions about the case. The big sound stages, the studio restaurants and the town's cocktail lounges are full of subdued talk. It runs like this:

1. Miss Astor was pretty stupid ever to have jotted down, with such amazing candor, her two-volume diary of "stray thoughts."

2. She was particularly stupid ever to have allowed it to fall into the hands of another person.

3. She is showing astonishing courage in fighting this case through in the face of such defamatory developments. It seems now that she will continue even at the cost of her career.

4. But in the light of scandals already aired, it might be better if the child were awarded to neither contestant.

If Mary Astor's career were to be terminated by this case it would end in a blaze of glory. For opportunists among theater managers have resurrected some of her old sensationalized titles and her name now glares from many a marquee.

"Mary Astor in 'The Woman From Hell,'" "Mary Astor in 'Sin Ship,'" "Mary Astor in 'Ladies Love Brutes,'" "Mary Astor in 'Straight From the Heart.'"

What Does Wall Street Know About Gambling?

Few Can Outgamble the American Farmer

Editorial By BRUCE CATTON... Cartoon By HERB BLOCK

IF YOU can return a foolproof answer to the question, "How is the farm bet going to vote this fall?" the soothsayers of both parties will shower honors upon you and call you blessed.

Doping out the farm vote has too many angles for the peace of mind of the rival vote-getters. Will the farmer feel grateful for the things the AAA did for him, or resentful over the things it failed to do? Will the recent drouth turn him against the administration, or will the drouth-relief program turn him toward it?

You can get as many answers to such questions as there are political prognosticators. The whole proposition is a pure gamble. And that, after all, is only fitting; for the farmer himself, by nature the most conservative, and level-headed of men, is engaged in a life-long gamble, in which he bets his livelihood every year.

HE HAS to gamble, first of all, on the weather. Will there be a drouth this year, or is there to be plenty of rain? Will there be a late frost in the spring to ruin his fruit crop—or an early one in the fall to lay it low before he can get it picked? He has no way on earth of knowing. All he can do is lay his money on the line and hope for the best.

He must gamble with the insect world. Will the corn borer advance upon his fields—or the army worm, the boll weevil, the 17-year locust, the grasshopper, the chinch-bug, or some other pernicious destroyer? The farmer won't know until the time comes. Meanwhile, he must go ahead with his planting and cultivating, wagering his time, his labor, and his money that these pests will leave him alone.

He must bet, too, on what all the other farmers are doing. If he devotes a good share of his acreage to potatoes, he is betting that there are not enough other farmers doing the same thing to knock the bottom out of the potato market; if he raises wheat, he is betting that faraway places, such as Russia and the Argentine, will not bring forth the same grain too bountifully.

HE IS even betting on the general level of prosperity, both at home and abroad. If it is good, he stands to make a good income; if it turns bad, he stands to make a poor one, or possibly not to make any at all.

He is betting that money will remain fairly "easy," so that his bank will give him the time he needs on that mortgage.

All in all, he is betting that the whole complex chain of unrelated events which makes the difference between a good year and a bad one will operate in his favor. He has been laying that bet every year since he became a farmer, and he will go on laying it until he ceases to be one.

It is one of the conditions of his life, and it is as old as agriculture itself.

Compared with the farmer, Wall Street is a piker and the man who invests a surplus hundred or so with his broker is indulging in child's play.

The farmer is the greatest of all gamblers. He has to spend his life betting that he can lick a game which all too often is stacked against him.

Cotton Belt Finds Self in Good Shape

No Requests of AAA for Either Price Adjustment or Loan Renewal

WASHINGTON.—(P)—Agricultural Adjustment Administration officials said Friday they had received no requests for either a price adjustment or a loan renewal on the present cotton crop.

At this time last year, they said they were flooded with applications for assistance in the carrying and orderly marketing of the crop.

Officials of the Commodity Credit Corporation also said they had had no applications for a loan renewal on cotton, which now is selling at between 11.70 and 12 cents a pound, with the prospects, according to latest government estimates, of a better than 12-000,000 bale crop.

It was announced rental and benefit payments on cotton for June totaled $348,248, bringing the grand total of such payments from May 12, 1953, through June 30 this year to $346,634,337.

Commodity Credit Corporation officials said no extensions would be granted on the 10-cent loans made on the 1953-56 crop which fell due July 31.

A total of approximately $465,000 was loaned to farmers by the corporation from October 1 last year to April 1 this year and most of it has been repaid. The corporation made the loans on some $3,000 bales of cotton and officials said today only the loans on between 25,000 and 30,000 bales remained to be paid.

Record Crowd Out for McGuirk Bout

Champion Takes Two Straight Falls From Jack Curtiss Here

Performing before 510 paid customers at the South Walnut street arena Friday night, LeRoy McGuirk, world's champion light heavy-weight grappler, defeated Jack Curtiss of Vicksburg, Miss., in a non-title match.

The champ, after exchanging holds for 20 minutes, came out of an airplane spin, looked on a rolling leg split that made Curtiss dizzy and then pinned his shoulders for the count of three to take the first fall.

Ringside spectators on the south side of the arena let out a yell that Curtiss' shoulders were not on the canvas at the third count, but the referee's decision stood.

Curtiss clamped on a punishing leg lock and almost forced the chap to give up in the second round. After five minutes, McGuirk wriggled out. Curtiss kept pressing the champ and attempted to put the back-breaker on McGuirk.

The champ came out of the hold like a flash, pounced upon Curtiss to flatten him, ending the match. So quick were the champ's maneuvers, some of the spectators were unable to see just what had happened.

The crowd, largest ever to attend a grappling show here, were pleased with the exhibition.

Pete Baltrow of New York won two out of three falls from Pat Newman of Texarkana to take the semi-final event. The match was clean all the way through.

Newman won the first fall in 13 minutes with the kangaroo kick. Baltrow won the last two with the back-breaker and body smother.

Rich and Reckless

By Mary Raymond

© 1950 NEA Service, Inc.

BEGIN HERE TODAY
MOLLY MILFORD, rich and popular, had received proposals of marriage from three suitors, but she had not asked her to marry him.

With her parties, Molly was to "The Red Poppy," a questionable night club with another address, "The Rodeo." The night she went out and when they came on Molly and herself dancing with a handsome stranger, he told her his name was BRENT STUART. In reality he is NELSON STUART, a bank robber, a member of a group planning to spirit Molly away and hold her for ransom.

A few days later he asks her to have dinner with him and she agrees. Baiting her for him at a downtown store, Molly encounters a girl who is her exact double. Instantly, Molly exchanges her luxurious costume for the other girl's shabby one.

Molly and "Whittaker" go to a place called "Frenchy's." Police arrive and there is shooting in which "Whittaker" is fatally injured. Molly is forced into a car and taken to a deserted farm house.

LEOLA BARLOW, the girl with whom Molly changed clothes, is found dead, newspapers report the death and in the meantime, Molly Milford, a member of the orchestra at "Frenchy's," tells Brent Stuart that a young woman sent him a message, but the message is lost. The music club adds that the girl looked exactly like Molly Milford.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY
CHAPTER IX

BACK in the library, Brent turned the pages of the newspaper with shaking fingers. The report of Molly's death had almost crowded the story of the bank robber from the front page. It was there, less conspicuously placed, and there was a line reading, "Picture on Page 2."

Brent studied the photograph of the young man the police had slain. There wasn't a doubt of it. He was the same man who had danced with Molly that night at "The Red Poppy."

"It makes sense. It's a complete pattern," Brent found himself saying aloud. "It's got to make sense."

He picked up the telephone and called a number. "Mrs. Milford, please. Tell her Brent Stuart is calling."

After a short interval he heard Donna's voice. "Brent, you poor unhappy man."

"Donna, may I come out for a moment? It's something urgent or I wouldn't ask you to see me now."

"Of course, Brent. Come immediately."

FIFTEEN minutes later he was saying, "Donna, please humor me. I know I sound insane, but I want you to try to remember. Was there anything unusual about Molly? After death, I mean."

"I don't understand, Brent."

"Anything at all you may have noticed, Brent, say it gently."

"It's so hard to talk about. It doesn't seem as though it could be true." Donna's voice was choked with emotion.

"Yes," Brent said in a low tone, "but try to remember."

"I noticed one thing particularly. We—she, she shuddered. "Her shoes were so tight. It was a little difficult."

"Donna, please! Was there anything else?"

"Yes. Molly always liked the very best of everything. Naturally, you know. The silk slip she had on was different. Trimmed with lots of lace and the material was expensive. It must have been that Molly suddenly lost her mind."

"No," Brent said. "Molly's perfectly sane."

Donna did not notice that he used the present tense. She said, "You loved her, Brent."

"Deeply, Donna. Ever since she was in high school. But I never told her. It didn't seem fair until after her death. I wanted her to have her fun, and not be swept into marriage because of an early romance."

Donna watched him drive away. Brent was taking this fully hard.

Driving rapidly, Brent found himself talking aloud. "The girl who killed herself wasn't Molly. Molly sent me a message after that girl was dead. She's alive!"

THERE was something that Molly had to do. She shuddered.

Jean Harlow Here in New Spy Story

Franchot Tone Supporting Star in "Suzy" at the Saenger

The much looked-forward-to new Jean Harlow picture, "Suzy," based on the best-seller novel of the same title by Herbert Gorman, will be the attraction at the Saenger Theater Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

Two of the ace leading men of the screen support Miss Harlow in this production in the persons of Franchot

Franchot Tone and Jean Harlow in "Suzy"

Tone and Cary Grant, each of whom is seen as Miss Harlow's husband in respective portions of the exciting story.

The romance, intrigue and drama in the precarious lives of those who stand behind the scenes of international espionage form the background of the plot which centers about an American girl stranded in London. The girl, Suzy, unwittingly becomes entangled with spy activities and stumbles upon the evidence which leads to the execution of a woman counter-spy and the shattering of her romance with a young officer.

Mae West's New Picture Is Begun

"Personal Appearance" to Have Big Cast of Both Men and Women

By ROBBIN COINS
Associated Press Correspondent
HOLLYWOOD—Unreal parade: The "rag market" of filmland is not suffering despite the absence of the three Marxes on tour with their next stage play in tabloid stage form. Mae West is working again—and Mae, prolific enough in bon mots between pictures, really loosens up when she gets to work.

Of course the funniest gag about Mae's present effort is not Mae's but Hollywood's. There were Mae and Paramount disagreeing all over the lot until it was arranged that the Western arts and sciences should be freed. Mae wanted to work for Emanuel Cohen, the former Paramount boss, who wanted her on his list too. They got together on a contract and then—Cohen's Major Productions are to be Paramount releases.

Four Men In Her Life
Mae is working on "Personal Appearance," the stage hit of Gladys George, who came back to Hollywood (which used her only slightly on her first trip a couple of years ago) to do "Valent Is the Word for Carrie." "Personal Appearance" is, however, a typical "Western." To begin with, Mae will have four men in her life: a press agent (Warren William), an inventor (Randolph Scott), a politician (Lyle Talbot) and a professor (Etienne Girardot).

"Men just like to think they're different," Mae volunteered on the set. "I'm not well acquainted with any real professors at the moment, but the press agents and politicians I know aren't the world's greatest romancers. Or maybe I'm wrong—I don't know 'em all."

Inventors? Sure I know inventors. You should hear some of the gags they even get to get to talk to me on the phone!"
Feminine Support, Too
But an unusual thing about this picture—aside from the fact that Mae's character, a movie actress, parades before a farm background—is the number of women in the cast. Alice Brady, Isabel Jewell, Margaret Perry and Elizabeth Patterson, for examples, are more or less accustomed to film footage, all except Miss Perry, who is a newcomer from the stage. So Mae, for a change, won't carry a picture alone—not at least unless preliminary preparations were misleading.

A modest young man who is a star worked through a recent big picture with a leading lady he dislikes personally, to this extent:
"Sure, I went to the preview," he told a friend, "and for the first time I really enjoyed myself on the screen. I got so tired of looking at HER that it was a positive relief whenever I came on!"

Women Paid More Than Men on Some WPA Jobs

WASHINGTON—(AP)—A Works Progress Administration report shows women have received higher wages than men on WPA projects in Kansas. The average monthly wage in Kansas, as of March, 1936, was reported at $39.99 for women and $38.76 for men. Actual earnings were $34.69—$37.66 for women and $34.03 for men.

Payment of the soldiers' bonus will bring to more than $45,000,000,000 the total cost of the World War to the American government, according to estimates of U. S. Treasury officials.

Here's the Story of Labor's Split

A. F. of L. Head Gloomy as Industrial Union Plans Advance

By PRESTON GROVER
Associated Press Correspondent

WASHINGTON—In the paper-strewn second floor ballroom of a hotel well outside the business district, 13 men sat through a long afternoon.

They were a peculiar type of American men, not hard-handed industrialists who had fought their way from the ranks to affluence and power, but hard-handed labor men who had fought their way from the coal pits, shirt shops and furnace rooms of industry to leadership of union labor.

Talk was desultory, time-taking, because the decision for which these men had already been reached.

Green Gives Verdict
Outside, beyond the swinging doors sat two dozen reporters, waiting for the formal announcement of a decision whose terms they already knew.

A few read late edition newspapers in a room off the hallway leading to the council room. Others sat on the floor in the hallway, backs to the wall and knees pulled up under their chins.

Late day—sundown—the meeting broke up. Reporters rushed into the cutler's ballroom for the final verdict. All labor men had left except William Green who sat at the head of a long table. He joshed a bit with the reporters. They met him half way: joshed back. But it was a half-hearted exchange. Green was tired, gloomy.

Floods of searching questions tugged at him for replies. He read the formal decision of the labor council tentatively suspending 10 prominent labor organizations from membership in the American Federation of Labor.

He had written the statement hours in advance, knowing how the council would vote.

Ultimately the newsmen filed out, crossed the street, whisked in an elevator up several floors to the spacious, busy office of John L. Lewis, mine worker chief and head of the organization of suspended unions.

There he had sat throughout the afternoon, able if he chose to look from his own window down into the room across the street where had sat the troubled council.

Lewis also had a statement ready, seeking to place the blame for the breach upon the council, as the council had sought to place it upon him.

Triumphantly, feeling the surge of the aggressor, he answered questions. He filed the reporters.

And there was effected a schism in organized labor whose outcome may be written in labor history through many years.

PLAYBOY RULER OF SERBIA
FOURTEEN-YEAR-OLD Milan Obrenovich became ruler of Serbia in 1888, upon the assassination of his relative, King Michael, and immediately began a life of debauchery and dissipation that made him the most extravagant and cruel reign in the history of the Balkans.
He raised taxes, only to spend the income lavishly and wantonly. He allied his country with Austria, while his young wife opposed him by her intrigues with Russia. He spread scandalous stories about the queen, and then divorced her.
When his son, Alexander, was 15, Milan renounced the throne and went to Paris. Then began an even more lascivious existence—champagne and perfume baths for the ladies, frozen precious Burgundy for a skating rink, a retinue of unconscious women, gambling, then debts—and Milan soon returned to Belgrade to restore his fortune on the taxes of the Serbs. Back to Paris, in 1900, then Vienna, he continued his drinking and gambling until he died in 1901, at the age of 47.
His portrait appears on stamps of 1869 to 1881.

HERE ARE SOME SAMPLES. THEY RUN FROM TWO TO EIGHT—SOMETIMES TEN-CARATS, UNCUT.

HMMM! VERY NICE STONES.

GOOD HEAVENS! THEY'RE PERFECT.

COME, COME, BELFRY, YOU CAN'T FOOL US. YOU DIDN'T MAKE THESE STONES—YOU BOUGHT 'EM.

AH, GENTLEMEN THAT'S A REAL COMPLIMENT YOU CAN'T TELL THE MINED DIAMOND FROM THE MANUFACTURED.

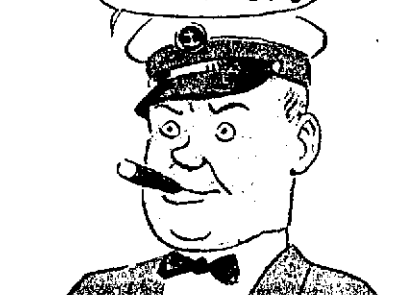

WHAT'S YOUR PROCESS?

AS YOU KNOW, THE DIAMOND IS A CRYSTALLIZED FORM OF PURE CARBON, CHEMICALLY IDENTICAL WITH CHARCOAL AND GRAPHITE, FUSED UNDER GREAT HEAT AND PRESSURE. CHEMISTS, AT ENORMOUS COST, HAVE SUCCEEDED IN MAKING SMALL DIAMONDS EVEN FROM SUGAR, BUT THE STONES HAVE BEEN OF NO COMMERCIAL VALUE.

I, GENTLEMEN, AM THE ONLY PERSON ON EARTH WHO KNOWS HOW TO MAKE A LARGE, PERFECT DIAMOND. THE MANUFACTURING COST IS ONLY $2.50 A CARAT. I EXPECT TO MAKE 100,000 DIAMONDS A YEAR AND

CLEAN UP!

GREAT SCOTT! YOU'LL—

SHH! LET SIR HENRY HANDLE THIS.

I SAY, OLD CHAP, IF YOUR PROCESS IS ALL THAT YOU CLAIM, WE'LL PAY A MILLION DOLLARS FOR THE SECRET!

HUMPH! I CAN MAKE THAT MUCH IN A WEEK.

HERE, I SAY! WE HAVE LARGE INVESTMENTS TO PROTECT.

WE'LL PAY FORTY MILLION.

YOU FAIL TO REALIZE THAT I'M IN A POSITION TO TURN OUT DIAMONDS BY THE THOUSANDS, AT ONE-HUNDREDTH OF THEIR MARKET VALUE. YOUR PROPOSITION IS ABSURD.

WE'LL PAY FIFTY MILLION!

SIXTY MILLION!

NO, NO! I PAY THAT MUCH, MEESTER BELFRY, FOR ONLY WAIN HALF INTEREST.

GENTLEMEN, I'M NOT INTERESTED.

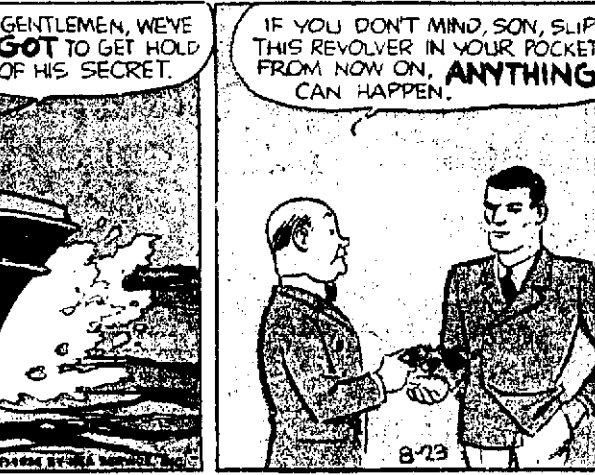

THE FOOL! HE'LL FLOOD THE MARKET!

HE'LL RUIN US!

IT'S A RACKET! HE'S TRYING TO HOLD US UP!

GENTLEMEN, WE'VE GOT TO GET HOLD OF HIS SECRET.

IF YOU DON'T MIND, SON, SLIP THIS REVOLVER IN YOUR POCKET. FROM NOW ON, ANYTHING CAN HAPPEN.

Flaming Plunge to Death

ALBERTO SANTOS-DUMONT, wealthy Brazilian, was having trouble staying in the air with the peculiar balloons that he was building. Count Ferdinand von Zeppelin, in Germany, was forced down in his first attempt in an airship that later was to produce such famous "progeny" as the Graf Zeppelin and the Hindenburg. So another wealthy Brazilian, Augusto Severo, decided to try his skill at the new sport of flying. It was May, 1902, when this intrepid coffee planter took his strange ship to France. Under a huge balloon filled with gas hung a long boxlike car. The day of the flight came. Severo kissed his wife, and she left forissy, outside Paris, where Severo was to land.

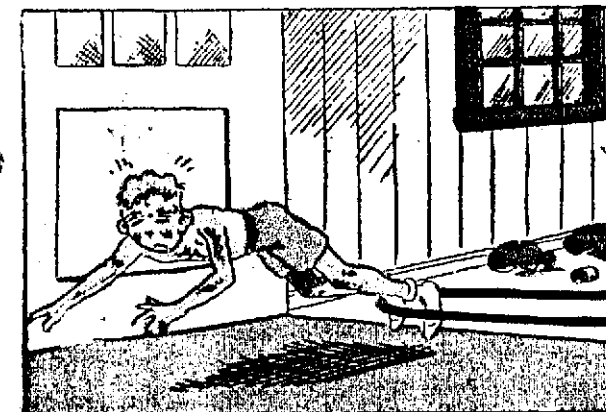

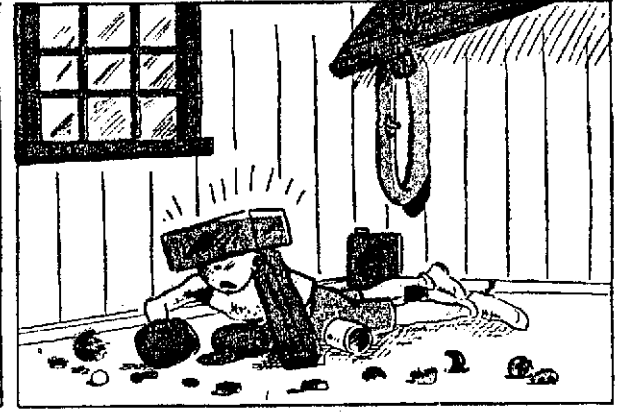

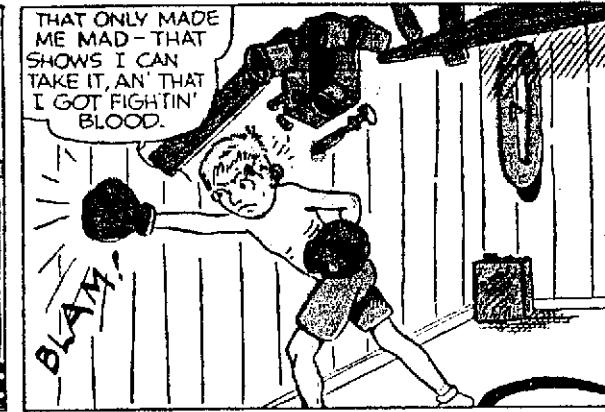

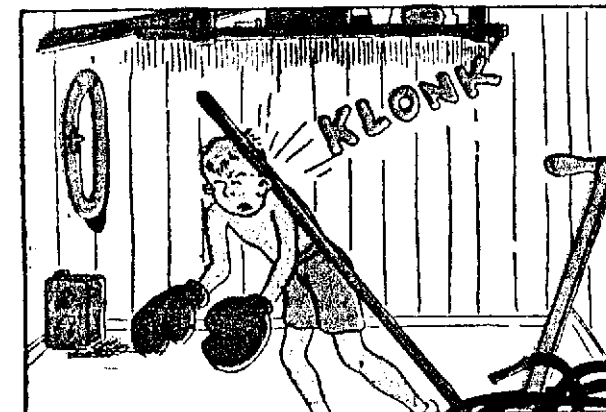

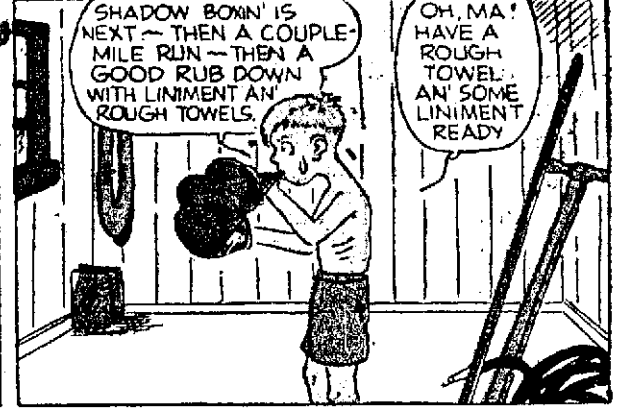

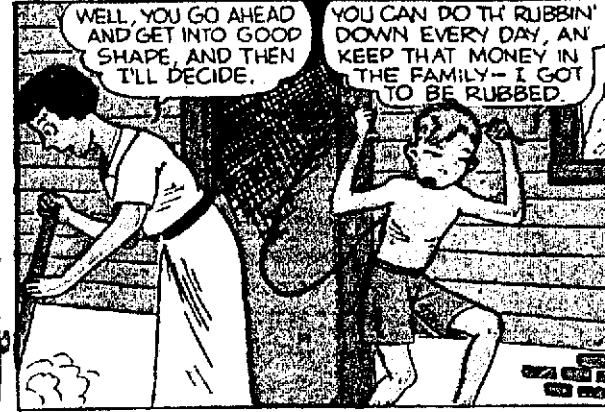

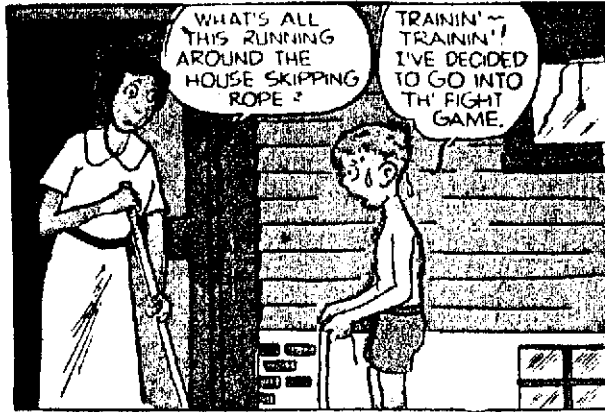

On the way, Mrs. Severo looked up and saw the ugly, clumsy craft overhead. Something seemed to be wrong. The ship was wobbling. The rear propeller was barely turning. Suddenly a gust of wind whirled the airship around crazily. Mrs. Severo was terrified. Flames shot out from one of the motors, then came a deafening roar. The balloon exploded and, with Severo, fell 1500 feet. Brazil in 1929 remembered this martyr of the air with two stamps, one picturing Severo and the other his balloon.

FOR CENTURIES, STORIES CAME FROM THE EAST INDIES ABOUT A STRANGE FISH THAT KNOCKED INSECTS FROM OVERHANGING LEAVES, WITH WELL-AIMED STREAMS OF WATER, EJECTED FROM THE MOUTH/ BUT PEOPLE FOUND IT HARD TO BELIEVE THE STORIES.

TODAY, A NUMBER OF THESE ARCHER FISH ARE IN CAPTIVITY, WHERE THEY DEMONSTRATE THEIR MARKSMANSHIP FOR THOSE WHO CARE TO SEE/ THEY CAN KNOCK AN INSECT FROM ITS PERCH AT A DISTANCE OF FIVE FEET, AND THEY SELDOM MISS, IF THE TARGET IS WITHIN REACH.

A SCIENTIFIC STUDY OF THE FISH SHOWS THAT, BY PLACING ITS TONGUE AGAINST THE ROOF OF THE MOUTH, A SLENDER BLOW-PIPE IS FORMED/ THROUGH THIS, WATER IS FORCED UNDER PRESSURE

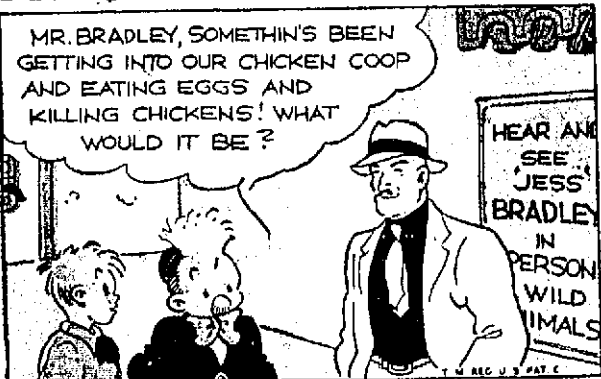

INSECTS FLYING LOW OVER A STREAM FREQUENTLY ARE DOWNED BY WELL-DIRECTED SHOTS

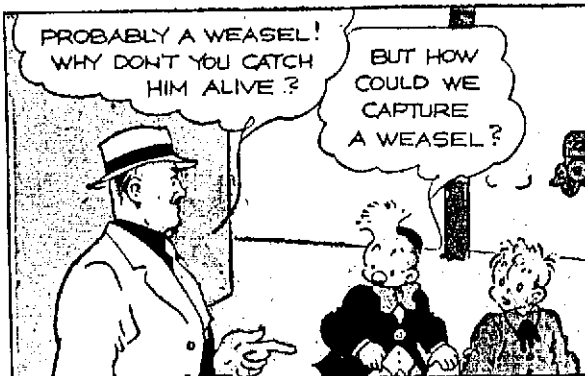

THERE ARE AUTHENTIC CASES KNOWN WHERE ARCHER FISH ACTUALLY EXTINGUISHED THE CIGARETTES OF SMOKERS STANDING ON THE BANKS OF A POOL

THIS SPEEDY LOOKING REPTILE OF THE LATE TRIASSIC PERIOD WAS BUT LITTLE OVER A YARD IN LENGTH, INCLUDING HIS LONG TAIL. BUT, REGARDLESS OF HIS SMALL SIZE, HE WAS AS CARNIVOROUS AND FIERCE AS HIS DESCENDANTS, THE HUGE BIPEDAL, FLESH-EATING DINOSAURS OF THE LATER JURASSIC AND CRETACEOUS ERAS.
